The Ants' Mountain

START : Place Stanislas

1 - Leave the Place Stanislas to join the roundabout. Cross the street Avenue du Cameroune towards Saint-Dié des Vosges and Epinal. At the traffic light, continue straight on Rue Leopold then on Rue Joffre. At the junction, take the street Rue de la Liberation, where a first ant, at your right, will indicate that you are in the right direction. On your right head for Rue du 442ème RCT towards The Ants' Mountain. Another ant and some markings will indicate that you arrived at the base of The Ants' Mountain. Keep following the ants' markings indicated below. Continue by climbing on your right by the small road. During climbing, you will walk along some new ants. Keep climbing to reach the crossroad of 4 paths. (Picnic tables are at your disposal for a little break). Follow the marked path on your left and the signs in the direction of the Daybreak (Point du Jour). Then on your left you will find a playground which will delight kids. Continue straight in the direction of the Daybreak, where you will discover a panorama on Bruyères and on the summits around. Continue going down the pathway. Join a bigger pathway and turn left to continue going down until arriving at the foot of the mountain. Go straight on your way back to Place Stanislas. Take the street Rue du 442ème RCT then straight on Rue de La Libération. Follow Rue Joffre and Rue Léopold in the downtown's direction. Take the Avenue du Cameroun and join the Place Stanislas.
